A note from the Editorial Team

At last! We now have a printed version of our Newsletter which we can put through your doors.

And we are in colour now thanks to some adjustments in the printing procedures.

We all hope you will appreciate the incredible contributions which our Community have made to this month's issue.

But..... Printing costs money as we all know (unless it is bank notes!). So if anyone would be happy to look up this Newsletter in the online environments—Much Birch and Little Birch Parish Council websites—where it will still be uploaded, please let Mike Leigh know so you can be removed from the distribution list.

WORMELOW

February 2020 and life was pretty much 100 miles per hour. As a music teacher and professional musician I could look forward to a full diary of lessons and twice weekly shows for the rest of the year.

March 2020 'Lockdown' happened and my diary was empty.

My wife Geraldine, my sons Leo and David & I were planning to move to Little Birch to be close to the in-laws (Mike and Jackie Morley). Geraldine was born in Kingsthorpe and was keen to return to her roots, but even the prospect of booking a removal company was bleak.

Overnight I lost all my students coupled with the loss of performing any live music. drastic measures had to be taken.

Have you tried 'Skype'... I've heard that 'Zoom' is really good... Why not have a look at 'Teams'.

The learning curve was steep and the time frame was short. However in no time at all a whole new way of teaching opened up to me and my students.

Next I heard that the housing market was opening up again which meant removal companies would be back in business.

The move to Little Birch was back on.

We made a few trips to our new home prior to arrival in July, then on the 24th July we moved in.

The first thing I noticed was the peace and quiet, and waking to 'bird song' instead of the roar of traffic.. I also now tend the gardens which is something this 'city boy' is not familiar with but is rising to the challenge.

September 2020 and life has slowed down to an acceptable 60 miles per hour. I am still a music teacher and I have started to welcome students of all ages from the local area. I have been able to set up my dream music studio which offers up to date facilities and is big enough to satisfy current distancing guidelines.

Geraldine and I hope we can make a positive contribution to both the village and the community.

I know my wife is home and so am I.

Seasonal Flu Vaccination Clinics 2020

2020 has been a very different year than we are used to. We have all had to make changes to the way we live. As we come into Autumn it is time to think about the risks of Seasonal Flu as well as COVID-19.

Flu vaccination clinics will be held in early October for eligible patients. All eligible patients will receive an invite by post during September.

Please attend at the time given

Please wear appropriate clothing so that the vaccine can be given in your upper arm easily.

It is essential that you wear a mask/face covering to attend your appointment.

Please do not attend if you or a close contact has symptoms or have had recent contact with a suspected/confirmed case of COVID-19.

Please come alone unless you need the support of a carer.

You may be expected to stand in a queue for a short time, which could be outside.

Please don't bring unnecessary bags etc.

Understand the toilet facilities will not be available.

Understand the clinics are for flu only, and please don't ask for other advice during your appointment.

Entrance and exits may be different from usual, and will be marked clearly.

Primary School children will be vaccinated in school as normal and will be contacted by the school or school nurse.

From September, the following people are eligible for a Flu vaccine from their GP:

Children aged 2 and 3 (if not receiving vaccine in school)

People aged 65 and over

People from 6 months of age with long term health conditions

Adults with a BMI of 40 or above

Unpaid Carers

Pregnant Women

People with a Learning Disability

50-64 year olds

NHS England aim to extend the vaccination programme to all patients aged 50-64 who in previous years would not have been eligible for a flu vaccination. These vaccinations will take place towards the end of the year and will be dependent on vaccine supply. Further detail will follow. It is vital we protect those most at risk first, if you are aged 50-64 and are in one of the at risk groups, please do not delay getting your flu vaccination.

Great September Offers

Our new "Garden Room" Guarantees Outside Dining Whatever the Weather

"Bounceback" Discount Extended

We are delighted to be back open and hosting guests again, albeit in a socially distanced manner and with enhanced hygiene precautions. Early feedback from those guests on how we are implementing the current guidelines has been extremely positive and we are striving to make all of our guests feel as safe as possible during their stay.

Unfortunately for the business, but potentially very fortunate for you, two large groups have cancelled their long standing bookings during the first 10 days of September. We have therefore quickly reduced rates for that period and also extended the very popular "Bounceback" discount along with the "long stay" discount deal we introduced in July, for the entire month of September.

For example, a 4 night stay in a Valley View King size room [rooms 2, 4 & 5] on a Dinner Bed & Breakfast basis arriving 6th September, works out at only £48.15pp per night sharing. A truly special deal and one not to be missed.

It would be great to welcome you back to the Pilgrim very soon, especially as we are bringing all of the staff back from "furlough" on September 1st and it would be good for them to have some guests to look after!

Best wishes & hopefully see you very soon.

Our Lockdown – The Axe & Cleaver

Similar to most we have faced challenges this year as Covid-19 forced us to close abruptly just a day before Mothers Day.

For a moment we were shocked into silence. What were we going to do? How were we going to serve our customers? What does the future hold? We however realised our best course of action would be to persevere in these trying times to find a way to give back to the community that has so tremendously supported us throughout these last 15 years. Within a week we had devised up our own takeaway service to help retain some normalcy for all our loyal customers. Needless to say we were astonished at the response and enjoyed welcoming faces (in masks) old and new. Once we knew we could properly reopen, we were so excited to get back to doing what we love, and doing it safely. During lockdown, we finally had enough time to do a little bit of redecorating and we had worked with chef to create some new exciting options for the menu. Beyond our menu, we've updated our Wednesday and Sunday lunch offering to include starters. We recently hosted a very popular Steak Night which is only one of the many ideas we have for our now ongoing event evenings. The most important thing is we are so happy to be back and are infinitely thankful for all the wonderful support, we would be nothing without our lovely customers. Contact us at 01981 540 203 or on our Facebook page.

We apologise for last week's error in which we stated that Sergeant Williams was a Defective Constable in the Police Force. This should, of course, have read a Detective Constable in the Police Force.

Was Downsizing a wise move?

Having lived in a large house in the village for more than 30 years and reaching our eighties we thought it appropriate to find a smaller easy to manage home and garden. Newsletter readers contemplating similar action might be interested to read about some of the experiences we had and hopefully avoid some of the problems encountered.

We soon realised that it was unlikely we would find a property in the immediate area to suit our needs so in 2017 planned to build a small wooden framed home next to our exiting house. The design we came up with included provision for a full time carer in case we needed one in future. It needed to be ready for occupation in the summer of 2020 to allow our youngest daughter and family to return to the village to live in our vacated house.

Planning permission was obtained with support from the parish council but Herefordshire council were not easy to deal with. In particular, the requirement that part of the new build had to be reduced in height seemed unnecessary and irrational to us.

An inspired decision was the appointment of Andrew Crum as project manager. He used his experience to advise on tradesman, ensured that building materials were delivered at the right time, erected the frame and did the plastering.

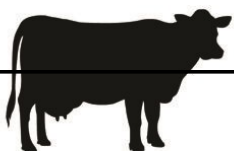

In one respect construction went too well. Herefordshire council ruled that the new building was suitable for occupancy 15 months earlier than our plan and we were required to pay council tax for this period even though it was unoccupied. We were told that it has to be charged by law. In fact the council does have the right to waive such charges but declined to do so. Ironically we would have been entitled to a 25% single occupancy discount had one of us decided to live in it during this time.

We moved most of our belongings ourselves and were fortunate to have the help of Justin Usherwood and his mate with the heavier items. Because we were downsizing we were forced to dispose of a large number of unwanted items. Difficult decisions had to be made about what to keep and how to dispose of still useful things. The arrangements at the Hereford council tip due to Coronavirus 19 did not help.

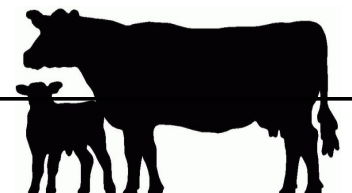

Our first few weeks in the new property were difficult. Remembering where we put things was, and still is, a particular problem. Not having a telephone landline including broadband was a big disadvantage when needing to order food for delivery. It was eventually installed 7 weeks after the promised date and following several hours on a mobile telephone to BT/Openreach.

Did we do the right thing by downsizing? Yes. We are able to stay in the area and we have achieved our objective of having a compact easy to manage uncluttered home with outstanding views. In retrospect we would have done some things differently and especially avoided payment of council tax before occupation-that we regard as unjust.

Community Café @ Much Birch Community Hall

What a relief it is that the lock-down is easing, people are able to come out of shielding, and we can gradually move into a "new normal". Our volunteers, who have been helping people with shopping and collecting medicines, are all returning to work, and so from September we will not be offering the same service. But be assured, that if the worst happens, and we have to go into lock-down again, we will immediately be up and running!

We must thank all those volunteers who have been so willing to help over the last six months, and we know there have been new friendships made through the experience.

We have been discussing whether the time is right to think about starting up the Community Café again – we have so missed seeing you all for bacon rolls, board games and Linda's famous waffles – but we have decided that it is too early yet. We would have to restrict the numbers so much, and the thought of sending people away is too painful to contemplate. So we are pinning our hopes on the new year as the time when we might be able to gather again, young and old, to enjoy each other's company – there will be a lot of news to catch up on!

A local group who want to bring people together, strengthen community links and provide relaxed and fun events for all ages.

Birches Photography Group

Visit to Hellens Manor – Saturday 5th September 2020

Our group had an amazing time at Hellens taking lots of photos of the gardens and the house and sculptures with beautiful weather— sunshine and clouds which is very important for photographers. We had a variety of camera from SLR to bridge cameras and even bridge cameras.

We stopped for coffee all together at 11 chatted. We discussed it was a very good venue for taking venue throughout the year in different seasons.

Our lunch was the most beautiful spread of quiche with very good salad., Hellens' apple juice and tea, coffee and cake provided – in a in private room in the Haywain barn. Which we all very much enjoyed and it made the day special.

In the afternoon most of us continued to do more photography in the grounds – one couple had a tour of the house which they found most interesting and informative. The group have been invited back during the Autumn and Winter months to return to take photographs in different seasons.

This was a very special visit and we would encourage people to visit Hellens Manor. Sally Nichol

My Gardening Year – with Cucamelon accompaniment

The end of December and beginning of January signalled preparation for the annual horticultural shows with the sowing of seed for over 9oz and under 9oz onions. Leeks were sown at the end of January and then onto the beginning of March when long and short carrots and parsnips were sown in their barrels. The experts may do it differently but this works for me. Sweet Peas were sown in two batches – mid February and mid March in root trainers. These items are the only ones that I make a bit of a fuss of, with shows in mind, all the other entries being selected from the basic culinary crops.

When the ground eventually dried up after the winter deluges it became apparent that the 50 onions sets that I had planted in October '19 had suffered. About 20% had survived - all the others had drowned. I replanted the survivors in a short row but they made very little growth through the rest of the season. The second setback occurred at about the time that it was decided to cancel the K&LB horticultural show because of 'you know what'. Slugs were chomping their way through what was intended to be both lots of show carrots.

As we all know there followed a long period of fantastic weather. This allowed me to keep a succession of crops for immediate use available, plus a range of brassicas and root crops for the winter months growing well. Everything grew rapidly and vegetables and fruit were available earlier than they would normally be expected. Fruit particularly benefitted from the sunshine as even my gooseberries could be eaten off the bush in July without the tartness curling my toes up.

The heat and lack of water resulted in a disappointing crop of runner beans. Many pods were, initially, drying up quickly on the vines and then in August two gales in quick succession battered them into submission in my exposed garden. They recovered a little and we have managed a meal per week since. The strong winds blew all the sticks over to about 45 degrees so it will be interesting to see how many 8 foot sticks have been reduced to 7 foot when the row is finally dismantled.

A super crop of onions have been put into storage and a surprisingly good crop of potatoes have been bagged up. In the greenhouses cucumbers and tomatoes have been produced heavy crops together with some huge sweet peppers. I have had a few water melons and have well over 20 bunches of grapes on the vine. Below the vine in the small greenhouse are 6 tubs containing sweet potato plants – these have produced vast amounts of foliage and when entering the house to pick a bunch of grapes I find myself almost waist deep in the foliage. The sweet potatoes will continue growing for another month so I hope the crop matches the foliage.

A couple of years ago I lost control of our 'long' border, which is about 70 feet long, and it became choked with couch and ground elder. Last year and again this year we have been reclaiming it in small sections. The unwanted weeds have been forked out and the sections left bare for several weeks to ensure nothing unwanted has been missed. There is just 15 feet left to reclaim now – the ground elder is under the influence of 2 sprayings of Roundup so it is hoped to fork this final section over before winter.

Now the Cucamelons. Each year a good friend and neighbour gives me a gift at Christmas that is either unusual or amusing. I won't embarrass Iris Lloyd by telling you who it is! Christmas '19 it was packet of Cucamelon seeds. Investigation revealed that Cucamelons are native to Mexico and are also known as Mouse Melons. The climbing/trailing plants produce small fruits that are about as big as grapes, and look like miniature water melons. They can be eaten raw and taste similar to cucumber with a hint of citrus. The plants have been promoted by TV gardener/chef James Wong for the last couple of years in seed catalogues. Apparently they can be included in various types of salad, included in a cocktail drink and pickled. I have eaten quite a few when visiting the greenhouse and have pickled a small jar full but as yet have not sampled them. Mrs. Scrivens does not particularly like them, and I have given family and friends a few to take away to taste but have not heard any comment back. One visiting lady of the community was offered one to try a few weeks ago. She bit into the fruit and exclaimed "B H" and quickly disposed of it in the nearest bin. Not one of her favourites then ! An interesting plant to grow, producing dozens of the small fruits which are crunchy, juicy and slightly bitter but do not seem to fit in as an accompaniment to our diet.

PILATES
with Alison Allan

Alison Allan is back!

I have been Zooming away in the summer but am now back at Little Dewchurch

Social distancing is a must and we can do this with 10 people per class – which means I can keep my eye on everyone!

Rollers, soft balls and circles makes for a varied and fun workout whatever our ability.

After our Lockdown Blues we all need to get moving with Pilates for our physical well-being and our mental health - and while we do this, we will improve our posture, balance, strength and general fitness.

My clients are aged between 18 and 95 so there is no excuse! Just give me a call!

14th September 2020

PARISH MEETING - at the Parish Council Meeting held on the Zoom Platform, during the Covid 19 Virus pandemic, on the 3rd September 2020 from 7.30 pm.

The Parish Council discussed an amendment to a planning application for homes to be built in the grounds of the Pilgrim Hotel. The planning amendment was to reduce the number of proposed properties from six to five.

The Parish Council discussed the hedge cutting season with a request to everyone to try to keep ditches clear of hedge clippings in order to minimise issues with blocked ditches which can potentially lead to flooding. Also a plea goes out to householders, with ditches on their property, to clean their ditches out in readiness for winter where possible.

The next ordinary meeting of the Parish Council will be held on Thursday 8th October 2020 from 7.30pm - on the Zoom Platform. All are welcome to attend.

Dates for further 2020 Parish Council Meetings are: 5 November and 3 December 2020.

Please see notice boards and website for agendas. As always the public and press are more than welcome to attend on Zoom and will have the opportunity to speak directly to their representatives.
