Parish Walks

After a week of very wild weather we were very pleased to see nine people turn up for our parish walk on Sunday 12th March on a dry and mild afternoon. We were led on a 5 mile walk by Angela Middleton along the footpaths of Little Birch and Little Dewchurch.

For a newcomer like me it was a great opportunity gets to know the area, meet some of the local walkers and share tea and cake at the end. Angela will be leading another walk later in the year so look out for the date. It would be good to see even more people next time.

As the new Little Birch and Aconbury Footpaths Officer I have been getting out to check on the condition of the paths, signposts and way markers, I have noticed several improvements that would help to keep people to stay on the right path, these have been flagged up to the council and hopefully will be addressed as soon as possible.

The footpaths of Little Birch and Aconbury are very well used, if while out walking you notice anything that you think I should be aware of please get in touch so it can either be reported or repaired by myself.

Little Birch and Aconbury Footpaths Officer

Our Riparian Responsibilities

Local residents may have noticed that many local ditches have been cleared recently. During the process it was made clear to us, following discussions with Balfour Beatty and the local lengthsmen, that few local householders/landowners were aware of their riparian responsibilities. These refer to the requirement for individuals who have a watercourse (stream, ditch or culvert) running through their property, or adjacent to the boundaries of that property, to keep those courses free of obstruction. It should be noted that in cases where landowners persistently fail to maintain watercourses then the local authority has the power to charge for carrying out necessary work.

The main issues that we see in the parishes are hedge clippings not removed, grass clippings dumped after mowing and excess earth, so please find somewhere else to dispose of these in order to avoid obstructing the ditches. Blocked ditches cause water run off on our roads which cause problems in freezing weather and erosion of the highways.

The following web site offers helpful information and further advice about the subject.

Jobs for the Garden in April

In my young days, February was often referred to as “February fill dyke” because, during that month, there was usually a lot of rain and often a few inches of snow. The ditches around fields and alongside the roads always seemed to have water gushing along them.

Not so in the last two years, this year in particular we had no rain at all, apart from a couple of light showers. The soil in our garden was dry enough to start work on it. I was waiting for the weed seeds to begin germinating to indicate that the soil was warm enough for sowing my seeds.

What happened? Mother Nature decided to dump 15cm (6”) of snow on the garden over a period of 48 hours and then it rained! It has put a dent in the plans whilst I wait for the ground to dry out again. The seedlings and plants are growing slowly in the greenhouse, although I have lost some cucumber plants, two eaten by a slug and one rotted off. The toad that has lived in our greenhouse for several years, obviously missed that slug.

Here are a few ideas for April

- *Deadhead daffodil flowers as they fade but don't cut the leaves off or tie them in knots.
- *Now is a good time to move or plant evergreen trees or shrubs as long as the ground is not dry or waterlogged.
- *Plant out autumn and winter sown sweet peas. Seed can be sown direct into the border now.
- *Mulch as much of the borders as possible with manure, compost or woodchips to a depth of 5 -10 centimetres.
- *It is not too late to repot pot bound houseplants, moving them on to a pot one size larger than the one they are leaving.
- *Protect fruit blossom from frost with fleece if practical.
- *Plant early seed potatoes at the beginning of the month and main crop at the end of April or beginning of May. If they pop their heads up and a frost is forecast draw soil over the leaves or cover with fleece.
- *In a prepared seed bed sow beet, carrots, leeks, parsnips, spinach, salad crops including spring onions and peas.
- *Plant onion sets and seed grown onions.
- *Sow Brussels sprouts early in the month, and also small quantities of brassicas for successional crops through the Summer.
- *Pot up tomato and pepper seedlings.

- *Sow squashes, courgettes, cucumber and sweet corn on a bright window ledge or in the greenhouse.
- *Keep listening/watching the weather forecast so that tender plants can be protected if a frost is imminent .
- *If you have forced some rhubarb, harvest stems at 20 -30 cms long. Afterwards mulch around the crowns with manure or compost and do not harvest until 2025 because forcing weakens the plant.
- *Nesting is now under way so keep feeding the birds and provide fresh water.
- *Sow a small patch of wild flowers if you have a bit of space.
- *Leave a little area of lawn uncut if practical.
- *Divide any overgrown marginal or bog plants in your pond to prevent them becoming too congested. Anything to be discarded should be left on the side of the pond for a day or so to allow creatures to return to the pond. Derek Scrivens

Little Birch Parish Council

Councillors Kate Dillon and Kate Robbins have announced that they will not be standing for a further term as Parish Councillors. The PC thanked them both for their commitment and hard work during their terms of office.

The PC, therefore, has two vacancies and if anyone would like to stand then applications have to be received by Herefordshire Council before 4pm on the 4th April. Nomination papers have to be delivered by hand and individuals may stand for election if: - 1) They are registered electors for LB parish. 2) They have for the whole of the preceding 12 months occupied as owner or tenant of land or other premises in the parish. 3) Their principal or only place of work during the preceding 12 months is in the parish or 4) They have during the preceding 12 months resided in the parish or within 4.8km of it. If anyone is interested could they please contact the Parish Clerk, Mr Neil Barrington via email.

The parish lengthsman has undertaken the drainage work determined by the PC in September. This will be at a total cost of about £2500 and will consume the whole of the PC's budget for the lengthsman duties for 22/23 and 23/24.

The local Safer Neighbourhood police team attended the meeting. If parishioners wish to receive updates from the local team then this can be done by signing up on www.neighbourhoodmatters.co.uk. The team can also be contacted for non-999 and non-101 matters by email on herefordshiresouthside.snt@westmerci.police.uk. The council thanked them for their attendance.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday the 5th April at 7pm.

The Yellowhammer's Nest

Just by the wooden brig a bird flew up,
Frit by the cowboy as he scrambled down
To reach the misty dewberry—let us stoop
And seek its nest—the brook we need not dread,
Tis scarcely deep enough a bee to drown,
O it sings harmless o'er its pebbly bed
Ay here it is, stuck close by the bank
Beneath the bunch of grass that spindles rank
Its husk seeds tall and high—'tis rudely planned
Of bleached stubbles and the withered fare
That last year's harvest left upon the land,
Lined thinly with the horse's sable hair.
Five eggs, pen-scribbled o'er with ink their shells
Resembling writing scrawls which fancy reads
As nature's poesy and pastoral spells—
They are the yellowhammer's and she dwells
Most poet-like where brooks and flowery weeds
As sweet as Castaly to fancy seems
And that old molehill like as Parnass' hill
On which her partner haply sits and dreams
O'er all her joys of song—so leave it still
A happy home of sunshine, flowers and streams.
Yet in the sweetest places cometh ill,
A noisome weed that burthens every soil;
For snakes are known with chill and deadly coil
To watch such nests and seize the helpless young,
And like as though the plague became a guest,
Leaving a houseless home, a ruined nest -
And mournful hath the little warblers sung
When such like woes hath rent its little breast.

Revd Mark Writes

In the news over recent weeks have been a large number of strikes, from railway workers to teachers to junior doctors. All these and more have felt that to get their point across, they needed to withdraw their labour and sacrifice a day (or more) of paid work to get “management” to listen to their grievances. And, of course, the impact of these strikes is not just the loss of income for the strikers but also the inconvenience of school closures, longer waiting times at A&E or children out of school and the impact on their education and on parental nerves!

But is there a theology for striking? In several places the Bible mentions the unjustness of withholding a labourer’s wages, and that you have a duty to pay the daily labourer at the end of the day so they can feed themselves and provide for their family.

In the New Testament John the Baptist, when asked about how soldiers should behave, tells them not to extort people and be satisfied with your wages (Luke 3 verse 14).

All of this is wrapped up in the quest for justice. It is a just thing to give a labourer their wages and an unjust thing to withhold them. What it doesn’t say is the amount that should be paid. We do have some guidance on that, though. A daily wage was a denarius, a unit of Roman coin that was accepted across the Empire. It is very difficult to put into modern terms what that would be worth but it was what was expected by a skilled labourer. It would be enough to live on for a day and put a small amount aside for recurring costs (clothes, oil for lamps etc). But at the end of the day, expectations were very different. No saving up to go on a holiday to Tenerife, for example!

As a society we need to decide what is just and what is right and pay people appropriately. If you look at the wages of the CEOs of the FTSE 100, they earn 350 times more than their average worker. Where is the justice in that? So, although the strikes disrupt our lives and make things more difficult, if the strike is just then perhaps our response is to support them and seek those wider changes that will lead to a just and fairer society.

Uncle Norman's Wartime Memories part 3

Kate Dillon shares the last instalment of Uncle Norman's memoirs from his time in Little Birch as an evacuee during WWII

Always on the lookout for a bargain, Mr Dyke purchased a vintage Austin tourer. This was converted into a makeshift tractor by removing all the body work and fitting a flat bed truck body, steel tinned rear wheels and a transfer gearbox. We called her Phyllis and she proved herself very useful for haymaking and the like. This was the first vehicle I ever drove; in a field and far too young for a driving licence.

Another bargain Mr Dyke bought was a "failed" hunter called Thomas, very tall and bony, totally unsuitable for the milk round and unrideable. However, I remember my father, also Thomas, had been taught to ride in the 1914/18 war when he spent four years in France, so he volunteered to ride the horse. He lit his pipe, mounted and cantered off, but Thomas took a dim view of this and bucked violently sending my father sailing through the air. However, he immediately remounted and had no further trouble. During this whole episode the pipe never left his mouth.

Whilst working in Bristol, my father acquired an old-fashioned bicycle to visit us on at weekends, a 60-mile ride. On one occasion he had left as usual in the small hours, and after he had covered many mainly downhill miles (somewhere near St Weonards we think) he had to come back and start all over again, as he had realised he had left his full set of dentures behind by his bedside! (Editor's Note – his route was to cycle to Monmouth on the 'old road' then down the Wye Valley to Chepstow where he would cross the Severn on a ferry before continuing down to Bristol.)

My education at this time was very disrupted. The local school consisted of two classes, Juniors and Seniors, and was reached up totally unmade-up tracks. The toilets were two earth closets which had a distinctive and unforgettable odour! Disorder reigned supreme and all I was taught there was to how to skin a rabbit and how to take a blood sample from a hen! My father was so worried he sent me to a private tutor, a Miss Stevens, a genuine Victorian relic complete with a velvet 'choker', a dislike of small boys and a deft wrist action when twisting an ear! The next step was Hereford Cathedral School. What a shock!! The school was a very traditional public school where the curriculum was Chapel, Divinity, Latin, English, History, French and Maths, and where the Prefects could freely administer corporal punishment. I have never forgotten that first night's homework which was to learn a Collect from the Book of Common Prayer and the Latin verb "amo---".

Whilst at HCS I watched history (almost) repeating itself. During the siege of Hereford during the Civil War one arch of the mediaeval Wye Bridge was blown up to defend the city. During the second world war they drilled holes in the same arch ready for sticks of dynamite if required..... Now that would have stopped the Panzers!!

The journey to school and back was quite a challenge, involving a walk of over a mile to the bus stop on the main road often in the dark due to "double summertime". Sometimes the bus, when it arrived was full and no more could be packed on board. Motorists would pick you up though, I remember one time I had a ride on the top of a lorry load of wastepaper and other times of having to walk all the seven miles to school. I doubt whether the current nine to ten-year-olds would be allowed to do this now!
